

CAPE Outlook

February 2013

Nation Considers Measures to Keep Students Safe

Within hours after the horrific shootings at Sandy Hook Elementary School, Americans began a soul-searching dialogue on how to keep students safe. More than a month later, the discussion continues.

The February issue of Outlook explores President Obama's proposals to improve school safety and also looks at how the private school community has weighed in on the discussion.

Also in the February Outlook:

- Justice Sotomayor is heartbroken that her elementary school is closing.
- The nation celebrates National School Choice Week like never before.
- The National Association of Independent Schools announces a new president.
- A federal appeals panel rules that school districts need not provide Section 504 services to students in private schools.
- And much more.

Download the February Outlook Here

Follow CAPE on Google Plus

Add CAPE's Google Plus page to your circle! While you're at it, why not follow our tweets on Twitter, like us on Facebook, and then join the more than 63,500 people who have viewed our videos on YouTube!

Private Education: Good for Students, Good for Families, Good for America

Joe McTighe
Executive Director
