Presented by ANITA ARCHER

The REWARDS family of reading and writing intervention materials is specifically designed for adolescent struggling learners. The program supports any core curriculum and offers flexible implementation options. The ultimate goal of the REWARDS family is to increase fluency rates, deepen comprehension of informational and content-area texts, and increase precision in sentence writing.

This day-long REWARDS training will provide participants with in-depth program training—including program research, materials, methods, and implementation. Using an interactive, practice-driven training process, the training session prepares participants to immediately begin implementing the program.
