

Emergent Writing for Early Educators—Part II

One Workshop, Two Locations!

All Saints School, Fife: May 15th

Holy Rosary School, Edmonds: May 18th

Description: David Matteson's model of emergent writing instruction focuses on creating a meaningful learning experience that allows children to develop their vocabulary, narrative writing, and fine motor skills. This session will review the main principles of David's theory, allow teachers the opportunity to observe David modeling writing instruction in a real classroom, and provide a follow-up reflection opportunity with colleagues. This workshop is open to all Preschool, Pre-Kindergarten, and Kindergarten teachers. Teachers who did not attend the March 10th workshop are very welcome to attend!

About the Presenter: David Matteson has over 25 years of experience as a classroom teacher, Reading Recovery ® teacher, and coordinator of teacher and school development through The Learning Network ®. He is nationally recognized and works with programs and school districts across the country to promote early literacy development. Learn more about David Matteson's work and resources here.

Registration Information: Registration is $40 per teacher, first come first serve! There are a maximum of 40 spots at each session, so make sure you register quickly! Click here to register.

Payment Information: Payment will be made online using the C-Vent platform. Title IIA funds may be used for Kindergarten teachers. If you wish to use Title IIA funds, you must contact your public school district for pre-approval. The school principal or Kindergarten teacher should then use his/her personal credit card to pay for the workshop. Save the receipt and request a personal reimbursement from your district Title IIA office. Please note that if you use the school account to pay for registration, you will not be eligible for a Title IIA reimbursement. Preschool and Pre-Kindergarten teachers do not qualify for Title IIA funds.
