Sustainability for Independent Schools

A Conversation on Housing Solutions to Retain Teachers and Staff

October 4th -- 9:00am-10:30am
Hosted by: Percy Abram, Head of School
The Bush School
3400 E Harrison St, Seattle, WA 98112

As an education leader in Seattle, you are invited to a conversation on solutions to address the housing crisis for teachers and school staff. Independent schools across the Puget Sound region are struggling to recruit and retain quality faculty and staff due to the severe and sustained regional housing crisis. For schools to continue to thrive, their faculty and staff will need to see a path to long-term financial stability, and housing is the key component.

In an effort to help school leaders better understand and address the housing challenge, Landed is convening a regional meetings for Heads, Financial/Business Officers, and interested Trustee members to discuss the range of housing programs and policies that schools are actively pursuing, including Landed's down payment assistance program. Percy Abram, Head of School at The Bush School has generously offered to host this initial event.
